RABIES CLINIC ANNOUNCED HERE

Three clinics for giving shots against rabies will be set up in Torrance during the licensing period for dogs, which got under way July 1, Torrance city officials indicated.

The shots are being given in conformity with a new city and county law requiring that all dogs be vaccinated against rabies.

The shots, which will be good for two years, will cost $1.50 and will be given under the auspices of the Southern California Veterinary Medical association.

Time and Place
Shots will be given from 7-9 p.m., as follows:
Thursday, July 12, El Retiro park, Pacific Coast highway and Vista del Parque; Thursday, July 19, Torrance park, Arlington road of Sepulveda; Thursday, July 26, McMaster park, 172nd street and Yukon.

Wild West Days Held at El Retiro Park

On Friday, June 29, at 2 p.m., Indians, cowboys, pioneers and sweet, old-fashioned maidens reminiscent of frontier and wild-west days, could be seen at El Retiro park, where the activities were under the direction of the Torrance Recreation department.

Some of the events that occurred were a costume contest, a sheriff vs. outlaws game, scavenger hunt, western singing and square dancing.

Many different activities and crafts were utilized in connection with the production of this program. To mention a few, it was necessary to make posters advertising the event, sheriff's badges, bags of gold for the outlaws, and treasure maps.

Following are the winners in the costume contest: In the "Old-fashioned Girl" division, Carol Barnett and Patty Douglass tied for first place, and Pamela Ferrone took second place.

The "Pioneer-Boy" division had Mike Mathews holding first place honors, Lynn Baker, third place honors, Lynn Baker, second place, and Craig Conant, third.

In the "Cowgirl" division, Dinise Dossi took first, Sherry Baker second, and Leslie Libbea third place.

The "Indians" had a three-way tie for first, won by Susan Arndt, Pam Arndt and Gina Corazza.

Special awards for interesting costumes went to Sue Baker, Mike Douglass, Chris Johnson, and Dennis Rumlill.

owners in this area, a deputy from the Pound Department will be on duty at the Lennox Sheriff's station, 4331 Lennox boulevard each Saturday beginning July 7, through July 28, between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

A Los Angeles County dog license shall not be issued for any dog, unless the owner provides satisfactory proof that such dog is less than 6 months of age, or exhibit a valid vaccination certificate showing that such dog has been vaccinated

Individuals who can show proof that their dogs have been vaccinated may renew dog licenses any time at the pound, or at the Torrance city hall.

L. A. County
Individuals living in Los Angeles county rather than in Torrance may obtain license application envelopes at sheriff stations, health centers, fire stations, justice courts, building and safety offices, or libraries. Licenses are also available at the main office of the County Pound, 11270 South Garfield avenue, Hondo, California. This office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

Dog owners who wish to mail their remittance may do so. Personal checks or money orders will be accepted and should be made payable to the Los Angeles County Pound Department in the amount of $3.

All application requests must give the owner's full name, address, telephone number, and the description of the dog, and include a valid rabies vaccination certificate.

As a convenience to the dog
